

BIOGRAPHY

WANDA TROTTER, CP, SCE, CEDS

Ms. Trotter is an entrepreneur, a speaker, a certified life management and business coach, and a musician. She is considered a visionary pioneer in the rapidly emerging and evolving field of virtual productivity and mobile business technology.

Her background includes working in law firms with top ranked attorneys on lawsuits ranging from local jurisdictions up through the United States Supreme Court as well as international cases. Her specialty certifications are in Electronic Evidence, and Practice Technology.

As a career Paralegal of 20 years before starting her own business, she assisted attorneys with incorporating businesses, writing business contracts, negotiating transactions, working with other entities to complete business plans, litigating breached agreements, and other related work. She is a business coach and has assisted in managing business networks.

She introduces innovative approaches to workforce development, bridging the gap between traditional worlds of brick-and-mortar business operations with virtual and mobile productivity. She brings a unique perspective that can be invaluable to corporations in light of today's economic climate.

Wanda has served in various leadership roles which include the Director of South Florida Chapter for Women in eDiscovery, an international organization of over 5,000 members that educates women about technology used in the legal field. She has served as national president for two nonprofit organizations and in other supervisory positions.

Ms. Trotter studied Psychology at Bethune-Cookman University. She received degrees in Paralegal Studies at Keiser University and in International Business Management with Entrepreneurial Emphasis from Northwood University.

A dynamic and empowering speaker, Wanda motivates audiences at industry conferences, corporate events, universities, multi-level marketing groups and global sales organizations. Participants leave fortified and ready to excel both personally and professionally.
